

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for providing an implant of autogenous bone. Generally, the implant may be taken from a selected bone portion and implanted into another selected bone portion within during a procedure. The method may be used in conjunction with soft tissue reinsertion or attachment to the selected implant site.